DR. ALEXANDER FOPE FOUND DEAD.

THE CASE REPORTED TO THE CORONER, AL THOUGH DEATH PROBABLY RESULTED FROM NATURAL CAUSES.

Dr. Davies Coxe, of No. 120 West Forty-fifth-st. reported at the Coroner's office early yesterday Forty-fifth-st., had died under peculiar circum stances. Although satisfied that his death was due to natural causes, Dr. Coxe thought the case required investigation by the Coroner. Dr. Coxe said that a messenger came to his home at midnight to go to the rooms of Dr. Pope. He had been found dead in bed at midnight, and probably had been dead several hours. His head was buried in the pillows, and his features were distorted, which in-dicated that he had died in agony. Dr. Coxe, who was a particular friend of Dr. Pope, is satisfied that his death was due to heart failure.

Dr. Pope was thirty-five years old, and belonged to a well-known family in Washington, Ga. He gradnated from the University of Athens, and also Studied at the University of Virginia. He came to New-York ten years ago, graduated from the College of Physicians and Surgeons, and practised for a time in Believue Hospital. He owned considerable en connected with the Polyclinic in East Thirtyfourth-st., the Vanderbilt Clinic and St. John's Guild. Several years ago, while treating children ne contracted diphtheria and scarlet fever, and had a long siege of illness, which left him with a weak heart. This, combined with the fact that he was an inveterate cigarette-smoker, leads hig friends to believe that it was heart disease which caused his sudden death. He was so happily situated that those who knew him scout the idea that his death was suicidal. Dr. Coxe said he did not discover the least trace of any parcotic or virulent poison, and is positive that his friend's death was not self-inflicted.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM SERIOUS DAMAGE. A collision that might have ended disastrously happened in Gedney's Channel at 2 p. m. yesterlay. The Red Star Line steamship Noordland, with over 200 souls on board, was on her way to Antwerp, and the Standard Oil Company's steamer Deutschup the harbor. Opposite the spar buoy the oil tank sighted the Noordland. It was hazy, but not forgy, and the steamers were some way apart. The Deutschland blew her whistle twice, indicating that she would go to starboard, and an answering signal came back from the Antwerp boat. To the surprise of those on the trading steamer, they aw Noordland keeping on her course, and in a minute the bow of the Noordland struck the Deutschland the bow of the Noordand struck the Peatschand on the starboard low just forward of the cathead, carrying away the starboard anchor and eracking several of her plates, while a big timber was driven through one of her upper plates.

The vessels were apart in a minute, and the Noordand proceeded on her way, signalling back to Sandy Hook that all was right. The Deutschland was not seriously injured, and she anchored off Bellow's Island. She will probably be docked to-day.

AFFAIRS IN BROOKLYN.

THE WILL OF C. DENHEIMER.

ONE OF THE HEIRS, "WHO HAS A SHORT FOOT," GETS $500 EXTRA, "BECAUSE IT COSTS HER MORE FOR HER SHOES,"

William Schuster, executor of the estate of Charles Dexheimer, the New-York lawyer, who died in December, 1893, leaving a large amount of property both in Brooklyn and New-York, appeared before Judge Brown, of the Supreme Court, yesterday and requested a judicial interpretation of Mr. Dexheimer's will. Mr. Dexheimer, several years ago, drew up a will containing ten type-written pages. His wife died in May, 1893, and Charles Dexheimer, jr., Ida, Laura and Emma Dexheimer became the heirs-at-law. In the will to each of these children is left $1,000 outright, with the exception of Charles Is left $1.000 outright, with the exception of Charles Dexheimer, ir., who is only to receive the interest of $1.000 until he is thirty-five years old, because "he has shown by his conduct that he was unable to manage money affairs."

Another provision of the will is to the effect that Laura, "she who has a short foot," shall have $000 extra invested to her credit "because it costs her more for her shoes."

The will, however, says nothing of what shall become of the orincipal, and makes no provision for the final division of the estate. This Judge Brown is now to determine.

FLINT'S FINE FURNITURE WARDROBES.

Could anything be brighter or more convenient for a small room than these? Chiffonier wardrobes with picturesque irregularity of form, long mirror in door, room in plenty and drawer room for all one's daintiest

Or daintier than these? Small French wardrobes in bird's-eye maple, top and bottom ending in curves, and mirror surmounted by exquisite shell-like border.

Or roomier than these? Great storage wardrobes with double doors and an abundance of shelves and hooks. Suppose you look and see.

FACTORY: 154 AND 156 WEST 19" STREET. The London Times, England, April 5, 1805, says of Funk & Wagnalls' new Standard Dictionary: "The merits of the Dictionary are indisputable, and are abundantly attested by a large number of unimpeachable authorities. It is a remarkably fine specimen of American cooperative literature, and should command a wide and deserved popularity," Hon. Justin McCarthy, M. P., the Eminent Historian, says April 5, 1895; "It is the most complete work of the kind I have known. It is a whole library in itself. I consuit it daily-and I not merely consult it, I read page after page for the mere pleasure of the reading." A few intelligent solicitors wanted
